Location:

Croydon is an established and highly practical commercial area known for its strong concentration of light industrial, trade counter, and logistics occupiers. The location benefits from excellent road connectivity, sitting close to the A23 and A232, with straightforward access to central Croydon, Purley Way, and the wider South London and Surrey road network, making it well suited to businesses requiring efficient distribution and servicing capability. Croydon itself is one of London's largest commercial centres outside the core, offering a deep labour pool, a diverse business ecosystem, and ongoing investment in infrastructure and regeneration. For light industrial occupiers, the area combines affordability relative to inner London, ease of vehicle access, and proximity to a major metropolitan market, making it an attractive and functional base for operations serving both London and the South East.
